Subject

The international Winter School ‘Comparative Studies on Adult and Lifelong Learning’ is dedicated to analysing and comparing international and European strategies in Lifelong Learning. Based on social policy models, Lifelong Learning strategies in Europe, including selected European countries, will be subjected to a critical analysis. Furthermore, subtopics of Lifelong Learning have been chosen (e.g. participation in adult education in Europe, training the adult learning trainers, quality in adult education) for an in-depth comparison and analysis of the situation in various European countries.

During the first part of the winter school, theories and approaches will be used for analysing European and international Lifelong Learning strategies. The programme features direct interactions with key European stakeholders in Lifelong Learning (e.g. European Association for Adult Education). Furthermore, local providers in adult and continuing education in Würzburg (Academy Frankenwarte, Kolping Academy Würzburg, Continuing Education Center of the local Chamber of Industry and Commerce) will be visited. The interaction will lead to a critical analysis and to a comparison of Lifelong Learning strategies, as well as to a theory-practice reflection on international policies in Lifelong Learning.

During the second part, the winter school focuses on the comparison of selected subtopics of Lifelong Learning in selected countries: How does the training of trainers vary in different countries? How does Adult Education participation differ in various European countries? How do quality systems vary in different countries? Which differences and similarities do we find in the policies towards Lifelong Learning in different countries? What conclusions can be drawn out of these differences and similarities?

The Winter School is geared towards master and doctoral students from European and Asian Universities. Mainly focused are students who are enrolled in study programmes close to Adult Education and Lifelong Learning. We welcome an interdisciplinary approach towards these topics.

Working Programme of the Winter School

Further information (e.g. videos, a blog about students’ international learning experiences, comparative studies) on the Winter School are provided under www.lifelonglearning.uni-wuerzburg.de

Part 1: European Strategies in Adult and Lifelong Learning

For the analysis of European and international strategies in Lifelong Learning there will be an introduction into a theoretical analysis model. Therefore, we will work with the study guide ‘European Strategies in Lifelong Learning: A Critical Introduction’. The authors of the study guide, Professor Lima and Prof. Guimaraes, will moderate the discussion of two different groups. This introduction will be followed by discussions with European Stakeholders in adult and Lifelong Learning as well as by the visit of the following Adult Education providers in Würzburg: Frankenwarte Academy (Citizenship Education Provider), Continuing Education Center of the Chamber of Industry and Commerce in Würzburg and Schweinfurt, Matthias-Ehrenfried-Haus Catholic Adult Education Center, Kolping Academy. The finale of the first part of the Winter School will be a reflection and a placing of Lifelong Learning practices into the analytical model.

If you participate at the International Workshop of Prof. Rajesh on 26 and 27 January from 9.00-18.00 each (lunch break from 13.00-14.00), please join us at room 1.002 in Z6 Building.

Training the Adult Education Trainers

Comparative Group Work 1 (Room Z6, 2.002)

Fields in adult education and lifelong learning are very wide. In the context of training and formation of trainers, adult education become part of lifelong learning. Furthermore, teaching activities of trainers forms a part of the professional life of each teacher, each educator, each coach and trainer. The initial training and the curriculum of the University Courses are structured, but it is important to further develop adult education professionalism on the job. Which types of guidelines are necessary? The focus of the interactive lessons and the working group will be the educational relationships in the learning environmental on the care of the self and the care of the adult learners. The objects of the study will be interpersonal relationships, communication in the context of teaching and learning, the profile of adult trainers as well as management of the teaching situation. The methods focuses on working group, seminars and active learning. A particular focus will put on the training of parent’s trainers.

During the comparative group we will focus on the following aspects (focus of country reports):
1. Which is the historical national background regarding the training of the trainers in the adult education?
2. What are the policies and basic legislation in your country about the training of adult educators?
3. What are specific programmes, activities, project developed on the training for trainers in adult education?
4. What is the Training for Trainers and Educators in your country? Who is the most important organization involved in the support of the Teacher Training in the field of Adult Education?
5. Which is the actual situation in your country regarding professionalization of the adult educators? Which is the actual situation in comparison of any countries in Europe regarding the training of the trainers?

Adult Learning and Adult Education Participation
Comparative Group Work 2 (Room Z6, 2.003)

Adult learning is at the heart of all adult education practice. On the different levels of action and across different forms of education (basic education, continuing professional education, political education etc.), enabling adults learning can be understood as the focus of adult education. Thus, the question of how adults learn and why (or why not) they participate in adult education is of great importance for everybody who is engaged in this field. Empirical data show that certain groups participate more than others do. A diverse range of barriers can lead to non-participation; the concept of barriers is complex and wide ranging. The question of this group is to figure out, what (kinds of) theories of adult learning and participation are popular in different countries and to explain those barriers to adult learning. Furthermore, we will focus on the engagement of different countries foster participation in adult education.

During the comparative group work we will focus on the following aspects (focus of country reports):

1. Which theories explain participation in adult education? What models for (non)participation have been developed?
2. What legislative background concerning participation in adult education exist? What political actions and developments can be observed in your country?
3. Are there any special programmes, projects and activities concerning resources (e.g. time, money, guidance)?
4. What is the role of the state and other partners regarding participation in adult education?

Quality in the Adult Learning Sector
Comparative Group Work 3 (Room Z6, 2.004)

The topic of quality has recently been described in a very detailed way in documents and position papers of international organisations, like UNESCO, the European Union and other international stakeholders in adult education as the International Council in Adult Education (ICAE) and the European Association for the Education of Adults (EAEA). However, the issue itself is under serious scrutiny, referring to the main questions: what makes quality in adult learning and education? Who is responsible for quality? What tools are available to work on quality in adult learning and education? Within the comparative group work practical examples on quality instruments and approaches from EU-member states’ adult education to promote quality learning and performance will be collected and compared.

During the comparative group work we will focus on the following aspects (focus of country reports):
1. What makes quality in the adult learning sector a relevant and/or current issue?
2. What is the history and evolution of quality in the adult learning sector? Do you find some early examples/struggles of extramural actions or recent attempts?
3. Explain the role and impact of policy and legislation, or the lack of legislation on the topic!
4. What roles for stakeholders exist to promote quality in the adult learning sector?
5. Please give examples of challenges in a small SWOT-chart referring to your own country.
6. Please provide two or three examples of quality instruments in the adult learning sector in your country.

The Policy and Practice of Lifelong Learning for Knowledge Economy

Comparative Group Work 4 (Room Z6, 2.005)

The contemporary era of globalization has and is witnessing an increase in economic competition within and between countries across the globe. Among many sectors, education (lifelong learning/adult education and/or higher education) has and is gaining utmost significance as an instrument for economic growth. Conceptually, such development in many academic and policy circles is attributed to the age of knowledge economy – there is huge demand for knowledge intensive employees (skills and competencies). In the age of knowledge economy, education has received unprecedented focus and pressure to delivery to the need of the economy i.e., the competitive market space. While such a space contributes to economic, social and geographical/regional imbalances.

Lifelong learning polices in general aim to create industry-ready individuals. The idea and practice of lifelong learning is highly differentiated but the global context in which it is operating is highly integrated. To unpack such paradox it is interesting academic activity to critically explore and examine the policy and practice of lifelong learning across countries, in a comparative perspective.

During the comparative group work we will focus on the following aspects (focus of country reports):
1. Historical trajectory of adult education and/or lifelong learning of each country represented in the group for winter school 2015.
2. What does knowledge economy mean in your country; what are the key policy documents/reports proposed and practiced (is any)?
3. Brief overview of socio-economic and demographic profile of each of the country in the comparative group.
4. Opportunities and challenges in planning and implementing lifelong learning in each of the country under one larger framework

Academic Professionalisation in Adult and Continuing Education

Comparative Group Work 5 (Room Z6, 2.006)

In the “old professions” (medicine, law, theology) universities and later professional associations were the main stakeholders in the professionalisation of the respective fields. Looking on the field of adult and continuing education, universities acted always only as one stakeholder of professionalisation. Beside universities, you find the practical field of adult and continuing education as stakeholder. Depending on the country, these stakeholders are associations of providers in adult education, single providers in adult education, professional associations or other.

This raises the question of the relation of professionalisation in adult and continuing education through universities and through the field of practice. The workshop understands university programmes as academic professionalisation. Depending on each country, universities are asked to build up relation to practice of adult and continuing education. Within the workshop, we will analyse university programmes in adult and continuing education in different countries, their relation to the practice in adult and continuing education as well as the influence of the Bologna-Process (including European Qualification Framework, competence-orientation):

During the comparative group work we will focus on the following aspects (focus of country reports):

1. Which history of academic professionalisation (university study programme) in adult and continuing education can be identified in your country?
2. Which kind of university programmes in adult and continuing can be identified (e.g. core curriculum, diversity)? Which role does theory-practice relations play? What kind of skills and competences are being targeted?
3. Which legislative background concerning professionalisation in adult and continuing education can be identified? Which roles do universities play in this context?
4. Who are the actors of professionalisation in your country? Which role do universities play in this context?

Educational Guidance and Counselling

Comparative Group Work 6 (Room Z6, 2.007)

In the field of adult education, educational guidance as well as educational counselling are being practiced. Whereas educational counselling focuses advisory services for the client and offers information the client could adjust to, counselling has a more subject-oriented focus in questions of learning and other individual issues. Therefore, the systemic approach is a widely used method in counselling. First, we are going to differ the terms guidance and counselling as well the different methods being used. Second, the ratio of both in the participating countries are going to be examined. Third, a comparison is going to be conducted, depending on which nation and educational field, guidance or counselling is the preferred method.

During the comparative group work we will focus on the following aspects (focus of country reports):
1. Historical national background on educational guidance and counselling: Where do you find roots?
2. Basic legislation: Is there any legislative background concerning educational guidance and counselling in adult education?
3. Which actors engage how in the educational guidance and counselling in adult education?
4. Which programmes concerning educational guidance and counselling in adult education are available?
5. Financial support/situation: Which information do you have about the financial situation in the context of educational guidance and counselling?

Travel

From Frankfurt Airport
You can plan your journey on the National Railway website. Check this website for up-to-date travel times nearer your departure. If you intend to buy your train ticket at the airport you'll find a DB Travel Centre in Terminal 1, Concourse B, Level 0, or ticket machines in Terminal 1, Level 0 (English language option). At Frankfurt Airport go to Terminal 1 and follow the signs to the long-distance trains to get to the trains.

IC- and ICE-Trains (which are regularly white with red lines): There is a train from Frankfurt Airport to Würzburg at least once every hour. The journey to Würzburg with ICE-trains takes about 1:25 hours and costs 39,00 Euro. With an IC-train it takes about 1:30 hours and costs 32,00 Euro. The first train of the day leaves at 04:37am, the last train of the day leaves at 22:33pm (exception: On sundays it depatures at 22:08pm). All trains that leave from Frankfurt airport after 22:33 take a long stopover and you won't arrive in Würzburg until 6am, so it's better to wait at the airport for a direct connection.

Regional Train (which are regularly read with white lines): The journey from Frankfurt Airport to Würzburg with regional trains requires a stop over at Frankfurt Hauptbahnhof (main station) and takes about 2:20 hours at a price of 28,80 Euro.

If you arrive or depart together with others on Saturday or Sunday and want to travel together with them, you can take the Schönes-Wochenende-Ticket (44 Euro for a maximum of 5 persons). Please be aware that you can only take Regional Trains in this case and only are allowed to use that ticket on Saturdays and Sundays.

If you arrive or depart together with others on a weekday and want to travel together with them, you can take the Quer-durchs-Land-Ticket (44 Euro for the first person, 8 Euro for every other person, maximum of 5 persons travelling together with that ticket). Please be aware that you can only take Regional Trains in this case and only are allowed to use that ticket on weekdays.

Bus: There are different bus lines going from Frankfurt Airport to Würzburg. They will cost approximately 10 Euro. You could search at the following websites for a good connection:

- http://en.busliniensuche.de/
- https://www.flixbus.com/
- http://meinfembus.de/en/

From Nuremberg Airport (Nürnberg)
From Nuremberg Airport you can get to the main station with the subway. Therefore, you first may purchase a single ticket for 2,50 Euro. From the main station you can take a train to Würzburg. You can take an ICE or IC train (fast) trains or a regional train. If you travel with other students you could take the regional train with the "Bayern Ticket" that costs 24 Euro for the first plus 5 Euro for every further person (max. four other persons). Both will take approximately one hour. You also could take a bus from Nuremberg to Würzburg. Busses usually leave at the bus main station which is a ten minutes walk from Nuremberg main station (see URL above).
