International Winter School

If you cannot study in Würzburg for a whole semester, it is possible to come only for the International Winter School. In this case, please have a look at www.lifelonglearning.uni-wuerzburg.de

The International Winter School on Comparative Studies in Adult and Lifelong Learning will combine mega, macro, meso and micro perspectives and strengthen comparative aspects of adult and lifelong learning. Furthermore, we will do several field visits in adult and continuing education centres, which will provide you with insights into the context of practice.

“I attended three international courses with the professionals from different parts of the world: Africa (Nigeria), Asia (India) and south-eastern Europe (Serbia). That was a perfect opportunity to get closer with completely different approaches and systems of adult education and to try to make a comparison on similarities and differences between them. The lectures were more than interesting, very creative, dynamic, interactive. [...] Beside the learning part of my exchange, I had a lot of free time activities. Würzburg is wonderful city, which offers a lot of new experiences in any sense.”

Aleksandra Milicevic, Exchange Student at University of Würzburg from University of Belgrade, Serbia, in winter semester 2016/17.

2.2 Employability policies for Sustainable Development

Prof. Søren Ehlers, Aarhus University, Denmark & Shalini Singh, M.A., International Institute of Adult and Lifelong Education, India

Friday, November 16th/November 23rd: 09:00 – 17:00h

Saturday, November 17th/November 24th: 09:00- 17:00h

3/5 credit points

Recognition: B.A. Pedagogy, GSiK

Description

Sustainability has been globally acknowledged as a primary characteristic of development since 2015. Thus, education policies that ignore the aspect of employability of adult learners fail to contribute to the process of development. Despite the global drive to provide educational access to every individual, lack of employability has become a growing problem across the globe. The need for a major change in the manner employability policies are formulated and implemented, is evident. In this interdisciplinary course, the transnational employability policies in relation to sustainable development would be explored and discussed in different contexts (chosen by participants themselves) to identify the existing best practices and gaps in existing policies. The course will include policy analysis of employability policies from two or more countries/ international institutions followed by a critical examination of the selected policies.

This course is relevant for participants who are interested in exploring the effectiveness of education policies in terms of learning outcomes and employability.

2.3 Successful Educational Actions for Inclusion of Vulnerable Groups

Dr. Tinka Tabea Schubert, Universitat Rovira i Virgili, Spain

Thursday, 14:00 – 16:00h

Weekly during winter semester 2018/19

3/5
credit points

Recognition: M.A. Educational Science

Description

The increasing diversity present in current societies can sometimes wrongly be viewed as a problem, while it is highly enriching. Yet, it is a challenge and also to adult education, that needs urgent attention and evidence-based educational practices to overcome the major societal problems resulting from a growing support of the extreme-right wing. The present course aims to critically analyse the diversity and social inequalities that characterise our societies and are present in Adult Education. In order to train educational professionals to be sensitive to these inequalities and have a commitment to overcoming them and making AE a more inclusive environment with greater potential for including particularly vulnerable groups.

Successful Educational Actions (SEAs) stem from the 6th Framework Programme INCLUD-ED project, the only project from Social Sciences and Humanities selected by the European Commission under the ten success stories of EU funded research. SEAs are actions that not only achieve an improvement in educational performance but also increase social cohesion and they are actions that are universal and can be implemented in any context and will achieve the same results. These Successful Educational Actions are discussed in depth and with particular emphasis on the potential of these actions with particular vulnerable groups in Adult Education. In this regard, some of the actions are implemented with cultural minorities such as Roma, with people in prison, in mental healthcare institutions, etc. This course allows students to critically analyse some of the current challenges in increasingly diverse societies preparing them to deal with these situations in their role as professionals in AE to respond to these needs with solutions for social transformation and promote social cohesion.

2.4 Trends towards Transnational Policies in the Context of Education for Adults

Prof. Søren Ehlers, Aarhus University, Denmark & Shalini Singh, M.A., International Institute of Adult and Lifelong Education, India

Friday, December 7th/January 18th: 09:00- 18:00h

Friday, December 8th/January 19th: 09:00- 18:00h

3/5 credit points

Recognition: M.A. Educational Science

Description

The post-Cold War order has been characterized by a change in the nature of international policies with policies becoming increasingly transnational and streamlining towards convergence or at least alignment. In this course, the above mentioned assumption is explored and analyzed through an analysis of policies in different contexts (in countries) and their positioning in relation to the corresponding transnational policies. An analysis of who formulates what, when, why, and how is done focusing upon how do such factors lead (or not lead) to transnational trends in current policies, why is it happening, and what could be the possible outcomes of the same. This course includes a historical analysis (not description) of policies since 1945 and therefore, has an interdisciplinary approach embedded primarily in the disciplines of history and Political Science. Three cases: The implementation of the Bologna Process in Europe, the acknowledgement of the existence (and the non-existence) of the Global North-South Divide, and the policies in relation to learning outcomes would be discussed in relation to the World Bank, the OECD, the European Union, and the UNESCO, to draw generalisations while participants would be requested to work on the policies they choose.

This course is relevant for participants who intend to develop a deep understanding about the rise and decline of policies, the role of primary stakeholders (and their stakes) in the process, and the linkages amid them.

2.5 Documents as sources in Comparative Studies

Prof. Søren Ehlers, Aarhus University, Denmark & Shalini Singh, M.A.,
International Institute of Adult and Lifelong Education, India

Friday, October 26th: 09:00- 18:00h

Saturday, October 27th: 09:00- 18:00h

2/3 credit points

Recognition: PhD programme, Graduate School of Humanities

Description

The use of documents in research is taken for granted where usually the content is quoted and many underlying factors are ignored or not observed at all.

However, using documents for research implies data selection rather than data collection. Further, how documents are used as sources influences the outcome of research to a large extent. Thus, use of documents is popular but not always fruitful in scientific research. Who writes what, when and why needs to be traced. Apart from that, exploring the linkages of the document with other documents could reveal a lot about the nature of a document and the relevant information provided by it as a source for research. It is cost-effective, and offers possibilities for in-depth research, two major challenges in Comparative Studies. In Comparative Studies, documents become even important as a source since they can reveal relevant, reliable information about the context of the research that could not be otherwise interpreted.

In this course, using documents as sources for scientific research is exercised and discussed. It is relevant for those who intend to use documents as sources for their research. It equips the participants with skills to analyse documents and interpret the reality beyond the content of a document, explore its linkages to the context of research, and map not only its content but also use it as an empirical source.

5 WÜRZBURG: UNIVERSITY AND CITY

Julius-Maximilian-University Würzburg

The Julius Maximilian University of Würzburg (JMU), founded in 1402, is one of the universities in the German-speaking world that have a long and rich tradition. Numerous famous scholars and scientists have made their mark here, such as Carl Siebold, Rudolf Virchow, and Franz Brentano. So far, 14 Nobel laureates have conducted their research here, including Wilhelm Conrad Röntgen, who discovered X-rays at Würzburg. In 1985, the physicist Klaus von Klitzing received this distinction for his discovery of the quantum Hall effect. Harald zur Hausen was given the Nobel Prize in Medicine in 2008 for discovering that viruses trigger cervical cancer. In addition, ten scientists from the University of Würzburg have received a Leibniz Prize – the most prestigious German research prize.

The Julius Maximilian University is constantly expanding: Since the 1960s, it has been spreading out onto a hill on the eastern edge of the city, called Hubland. A green campus has sprung up there, bringing together large sections of Science and Humanities. This is also home to the University Library, the Mensa dining hall, the Hubland Campus and the University Sports Facilities. In 2011, this area was expanded by a further 39 hectares, offering a huge amount of space for new institute premises and seminar rooms.

More than 27,000 students, including some 2,100 young people from abroad, are registered with ten faculties. These can be divided into four main areas: Humanities, Law and Economics, Life Sciences, and Natural Sciences and Technology. The university and its hospital provide employment for 10,000 people. Around 3,000 are on the academic staff, more than 400 as professors.

Study in Würzburg

The University of Würzburg offers more than 200 study programmes. In addition to this, there are parallel courses and postgraduate courses in Experimental Medicine, European Law, and other study fields. The university also offers some further education courses, such as Psychological Psychotherapy, Purchasing and Supply Management. The Center for Continuing Education coordinates the part-time educational courses for professionals, which are expanded continuously. As an important element in the promotion of young talent, the Julius Maximilian University offers doctoral degrees in all study areas, even in interdisciplinary fields, with intensive tutoring and supplementary multidisciplinary courses. The University of Würzburg Graduate Schools for doctoral students from all disciplines were set up for this purpose.

Research

The university boasts numerous collaborative research centers, graduate schools, and research groups, which are funded by the German Research Foundation (DFG). These top-level research facilities have been secured for Würzburg despite tough competition from other higher education institutions. The Julius Maximilian University is among the most successful German institutions of higher education. This can be attributed to its high-caliber scholars and scientists as well as its interdisciplinary research centers, which have been set up in the fields of Medicine, Science, and Humanities. The university was a pioneer in creating these centers, starting the process as early as the 1990s.

Cosmopolitan

The Julius Maximilian University maintains numerous partnerships with universities in Africa, America, Asia, Australia, and Europe, and strengthens these relationships continuously. In addition, there are considerable relations at the level of institutes and departments. Internationalization is a top priority for the University of Würzburg.

5 WÜRZBURG: UNIVERSITY AND CITY

The city of Würzburg

A lot of student activities take place alongside the River Main with its promenades, meadows, and beer gardens: discovering the music and culture of our neighboring continent on the Main meadows during Europe's biggest Africa festival, walking barefoot in the sand at the city beach, or enjoying concerts and theater performances on a floating stage during the Würzburg Docks Festival – all this and more is on offer in Würzburg. Another popular event is the Mozart Festival, where “Serenade No. 13” is performed in a relaxed atmosphere in the Court Garden of the Residence. The distances within Würzburg city center can be covered easily on foot. Sporty people can reach all destinations by bicycle.

There is no lack of sports options in the city; there are cycling, running and Inline skating routes, leading along the River Main or through the vineyards. The university offers a broad spectrum of sports activities, ranging from basketball to yoga.

The university also culturally benefits the city and the wider region: concerts by the Institute of Music Research or exhibitions in the university's museums enrich the cultural scene. For the general public, the university organizes lectures, readings, and other public events.

In addition, there are laboratories for school pupils, a children's university, a school pupils' university, and study programs for senior citizens. All these events combine with other cultural offerings and leisure facilities in Würzburg – theaters, concerts, open-air festivals, and wine festivals – to create an attractive environment in which to live and work.
